All three ladies are bold standouts in this turquoise Balenciaga dress, but Kelsea has the winning edge with her tailored finish and long, sleek locks. Kim's second-skin vibe is the sexiest, but we wish she would've skipped the sunglasses and black booties. As for country singer MacKenzie? The matchy-matchy earrings are overkill.

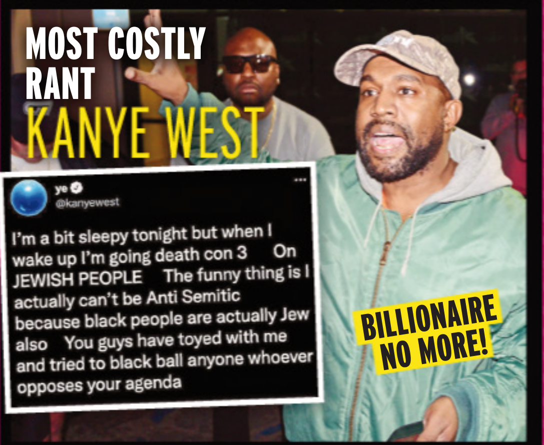
WEDDING OF THE YEAR

J. LO & BEN

They actually did it! A little more than 18 years after calling off their first wedding, Jennifer Lopez and Ben Affleck tied the knot in Las Vegas on July 16, then threw a traditional bash for friends and family on Aug. 20 at their home in Riceboro, Ga. — where the original nuptials were set to take place! "Once we called off that wedding 20 years ago, it was the biggest heartbreak of my life. I honestly felt like I was going to die. It sent me on a spiral for the next 18 years where I just couldn't get it right," J. Lo recently confessed. "But now, it does have a happy ending. It has the most would-never-happen-in-Hollywood ending."

MOST COSTLY RANT

KANYE WEST



ye
@kanyewest

I'm a bit sleepy tonight but when I wake up I'm going death con 3 On JEWISH PEOPLE The funny thing is I actually can't be Anti Semitic because black people are actually Jew also You guys have toyed with me and tried to black ball anyone whoever opposes your agenda

BILLIONAIRE NO MORE!

He started the year as a billionaire, but following an anti-Semitic Twitter rant in October, Adidas, Balenciaga, Vogue and more brands (plus a lot of celebs) cut ties with Kanye West, costing him a staggering three-quarters of his fortune. (And that's not including the $200K-a-month he owes ex-wife Kim Kardashian in child support.) "I lost $2 billion in one day, and I'm still alive," boasted Ye, who in a Dec. 1 interview went on to praise Hitler!

BIGGEST FEUD

JOJO VS. CANDACE

A chance 2016 encounter ignites a full-fledged war! In July, JoJo Siwa called out Candace Cameron Bure for being the "rudest celebrity I've ever met," based on a run-in at the Fuller House premiere. Though they called a tentative truce, hostilities resumed in November when Candace's declaration that her network, Great American Family, "will keep traditional marriage at the core" sparked outrage. I can't believe after everything that went down just a few months ago that she would not only create a movie with [the] intention of excluding LGBTQIA+, but then also talk about it," said JoJo. "This is rude and hurtful to a whole community of people."

RST of 2022!

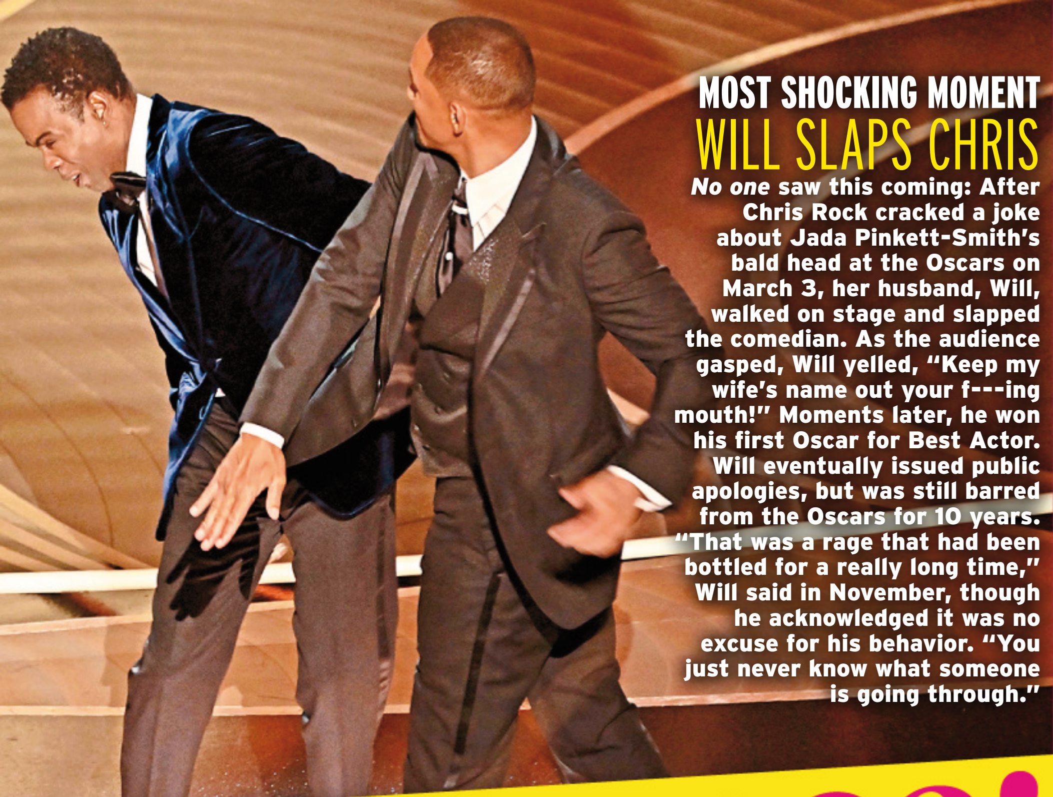
What a year! In Touch recaps the biggest shockers, scandals, hookups and heartbreaks in the past 12 months



MOST SHOCKING MOMENT

WILL SLAPS CHRIS

No one saw this coming: After Chris Rock cracked a joke about Jada Pinkett-Smith's bald head at the Oscars on March 3, her husband, Will, walked on stage and slapped the comedian. As the audience gasped, Will yelled, "Keep my wife's name out your f---ing mouth!" Moments later, he won his first Oscar for Best Actor. Will eventually issued public apologies, but was still barred from the Oscars for 10 years. "That was a rage that had been bottled for a really long time," Will said in November, though he acknowledged it was no excuse for his behavior. "You just never know what someone is going through."

WORST CUSTOMER

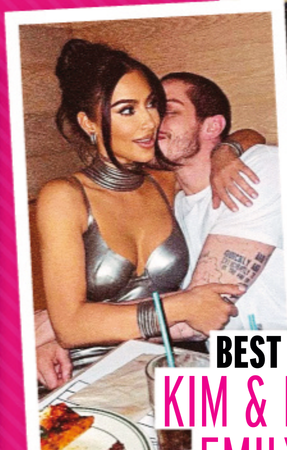
JAMES CORDEN

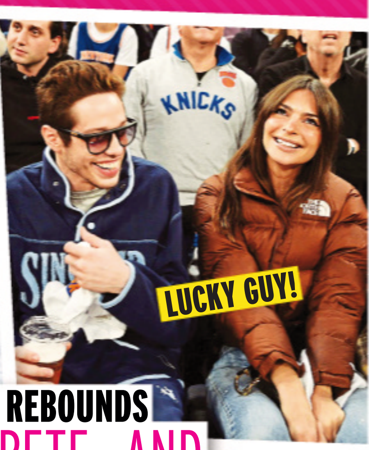
"James Corden is a hugely gifted comedian, but a tiny cretin of a man," restaurateur Keith McNally (inset) wrote on Instagram in October, announcing that he'd banned the talk show host for being "abusive" to Balthazar servers. Though Keith claimed to have lifted the ban after James "apologized profusely," Keith called him out again in late October for lying about the incident: "I've given up on James. For good."

WORST PUBLICITY

DON'T WORRY DARLING DRAMA

No worries? Not even close. Director Olivia Wilde's movie Don't Worry Darling – during which she fell for leading man Harry Styles – became a lightning rod for drama. In April, custody papers from her ex, Jason Sudeikis, were awkwardly served to Olivia while she was on stage promoting the movie. In August, she claimed she had to fire Shia LaBeouf before hiring Harry (Shia denied being fired) and was plagued by reports that she didn't get along with star Florence Pugh. (Their chilly public interaction didn't help.) Finally, at the Venice premiere in September, fans were convinced they caught Harry Styles spitting on co-star Chris Pine! Not surprisingly, Olivia and Harry's romance ended not long after the film tanked.





BEST REBOUNDS

KIM & PETE...AND EMILY & PETE

The Pete Davidson mystique only grew this year, when he caught the eye of a newly single Kim Kardashian. After nine months of surprisingly normal dates, an appearance on her reality show and multiple tattoos (for him), they called it quits. Within weeks, the SNL alum landed another one of the world's most desirable women: model Emily Ratajkowski, who'd allegedly been cheated on (!) by her hubby. What's the appeal? While his ex Ariana Grande revealed he's well-endowed, Kim says, "Pete has the best heart. He's just the sweetest, most thoughtful person."

OMG...

BEST & WORST of 2022!

BIGGEST TEARJERKER

The end of an era! Queen Elizabeth II passed away at Scotland's Balmoral Castle on Sept. 8 at age 96, less than three months after celebrating the anniversary of her historic 70-year reign. Her family – including Prince Harry and Meghan Markle – attended her funeral at Westminster Abbey on Sept. 19. "Few leaders have seen the outpouring of love we have seen," eulogized Archbishop Justin Welby. "She was joyful, present to so many, touching a multitude of lives." As the somber event ended, even her son King Charles III was brought to tears.

KHLOÉ'S CRAZY FACE!

The Kardashians were named Reality Show of 2022 at the People's Choice Awards on Dec. 6. But the next day, it wasn't the award that fans were talking about – they were stunned by Khloé's appearance. "Calm down on whatever you're doing to your face," one Twitter user told Khloé, who accepted the trophy alongside her equally plastic mother, Kris Jenner, 67. Khloé, 38, who's admitted to getting a nose job and injections, and has spoken about her desire for breast implants, "will get Botox and Sculptra filler every six weeks," a source tells In Touch. "The doctor comes right to Khloé's mansion!" But Khloé makes no apologies for the work she's had done, once telling her haters, "My body, my image, and how I choose to look is my choice. It's not for anyone to decide or judge what is acceptable."

SHAKE-UP AT THE VOICE!

And you thought the battle rounds were dramatic! Sources tell In Touch things are getting "a little tense" behind the scenes at The Voice. "For starters, Blake [Shelton] up and quit," says an insider, claiming the singer didn't enjoy doing the show anymore, so Season 23 will be his last. (For the record, Blake's wife, Gwen Stefani, 53, says Blake decided to leave because "he just wants more time. He's doing two seasons a year. In between that, he's touring. It's a lot of brainpower. It's a lot of time away from the family." Also, there's speculation John Legend, 43, isn't coming back next season. "It's kind of a mess. So the show will get a major overhaul in Season 24. It's not even clear if Gwen will be back." The show is still a major success in the ratings, and "it makes a ton of money for NBC," adds the insider, "so the changes won't be willy-nilly. They'll be well thought out. Some parts have gotten a little stale. Any show that's been around for as long as The Voice has needs some sprucing up." At least Blake, 46, is going out on a high note: On the Season 22 finale, on Dec. 13, Bryce Leatherwood from Team Blake was crowned the winner!

GUESS WHO?!

This hottie singer who used to appear on a reality show may want to lay off the booze next time he has sex. A former fling spills that he couldn't rise to the occasion when it came time for him to, er, perform.

ARE THE BACKSTREET BOYS Ditching Nick?

Nick Carter's sexual assault scandal could have dire consequences for the singer. On the heels of the Backstreet Boys' ABC Christmas special, A Very Backstreet Holiday, getting axed comes speculation that Nick might have to take "a step back" from the band, a source tells In Touch. (Nick, 42, denies the rape allegations.) "There have been a lot of closed-door meetings in recent days. Bottom line, it's all about business, so some believe the band might have to dump Nick in order to continue with their scheduled performances and gigs." Not likely, says a second source. "The band and everyone else who knows Nick totally stand behind him. He isn't going anywhere."

Kate's RELEASING AN ALBUM

Move over, Adele! Sources tell In Touch Kate Hudson is making an album. "If you know Kate, you know that she's always wanted to sing," says a friend of the Almost Famous actress. "It's been her passion even before acting. She's been wanting to do more singing, besides the few times she sang in films and, most notably, on Glee." Of course, Kate, 43, is nervous about what people might think and say. "She doesn't want to be known as 'the entitled actress with a vanity project.' But singing is what she's always wanted to do – it's in her bones, she's said. So she's not holding back or second-guessing herself anymore. She's doing it!"

GONE TOO SOON

THE DANCE
"Saying YES to @sir_twitch_alot has been one of the best decisions I have ever made in my life!! I feel so blessed and loved!!" Allison captioned this Instagram pic celebrating their ninth wedding anniversary on Dec. 10.

BEHIND THE BELOVED STAR'S BRIGHT SMILE WAS A TORMENTED SOUL

Around 9:20 a.m. on Monday, Dec. 12, Stephen "tWitch" Boss rang a nearby budget motel to check if rooms were available. About an hour later, he walked to the Oak Tree Inn in LA's Encino neighborhood, leaving his car behind at the six-bedroom home he shared with his wife, dancer Allison Holker, and their three kids. "He was by himself. Everything was normal, nothing was weird," the motel's manager, Rakesh, tells In Touch. tWitch was carrying a small bag, and he booked for the night, Room 249 for $122.

It was the last time anyone saw him alive. "He went into his room," the motel manager said, "and he never came out." Early on the morning of Dec. 13 — just three days after they celebrated their nine-year wedding anniversary — tWitch's wife, Allison, 34, frantically visited an LAPD station to report her husband had left their house without warning, wouldn't answer her calls and had not returned. Soon, police learned why. Around 11:15 a.m., a motel staffer discovered tWitch's lifeless body. Paramedics were called, but it was too late: tWitch, the jovial DJ and executive producer of Ellen DeGeneres' talk show from 2014 to 2022, was dead at 40 from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, the Los Angeles County Medical Examiner-Coroner's office confirmed. "It is with the heaviest of hearts that I have to share that my husband, Stephen, has left us," a grieving Allison announced on Dec. 14. "Stephen lit up every room he stepped into. He valued family, friends and community above all else, and leading with love and light was everything to him."

PRIVATE PAIN

But it soon became heartbreakingly clear that tWitch had secretly been consumed by darkness. When the maid found him in the bathroom of his motel room, "there was blood everywhere," says the manager, speculating that staff and guests most likely didn't hear the gunshot because the property is located on a busy, loud road.

Friends and family were stunned when they learned the circumstances surrounding the Magic Mike XXL star's sudden passing, as many said tWitch seemed happy in the days tWitch left his car at the 4,600-square-foot home he and Allison bought for $2.75 million in 2019 and walked to the nearby Oak Tree Inn on Dec. 12.

OAK TREE INN

and weeks before his suicide. "It appeared he had everything — a loving and gorgeous wife, kids, a career, a beautiful home — but it's obvious now that he was battling demons," says an insider. "He's talked about dealing with difficulties and overcoming hardships in the past, but no one saw this coming."

DEVASTATED FAMILY

His loved ones are in unfathomable pain. "tWitch was so easygoing, always laughing and in good spirits," continues the insider. "He had no enemies. He would say he liked to stay in his lane. His death shocked everyone that knew him. There were absolutely no warning signs or red flags."

Eddy Boss last spoke to his grandson on Dec. 10. He confirms tWitch "was the same happy-go-lucky person that he's always been. We had no indication that anything was out of the ordinary." The 84-year-old also shared the dancer's final words to him. tWitch sent him "a simple text that said, 'I love you, Dad-Dad.'"

Two days before tWitch checked into the motel, he and Allison gushed about each other on Instagram as they marked

▲LOVING FATHER

"He was the backbone of our family, the best husband and father, and an inspiration to his fans," Allison said of tWitch, who adored his kids, Weslie, Zaia and Maddox.

nine years of marriage. "Happy anniversary, my love," tWitch wrote to his wife on Dec. 10 alongside beautiful images from their 2013 nuptials, while Allison wrote, "I love you, baby, and I will never take you or OUR love for granted!" One day after their anniversary, they were all smiles again as they danced in front of their Christmas tree in a "holiday Sunday funday" video they'd choreographed to an Alicia Keys song.

The couple, who fell in love after both appeared as all-stars on Season 7 of So You Think You Dance in 2010 (he was Season 2's runner-up), were even talking about expanding their family. "I love the little babies, I love them. It's a constant conversation," tWitch — dad to son Maddox, 6, and daughter Zaia, 3, with Allison and devoted stepfather to Weslie, 14, Allison's daughter from a previous relationship — said on The Jennifer Hudson Show in November. Added Allison: "I think we would love to start trying for another one." According to the insider, tWitch "was a solid family man who was planning for the future — that's what makes this so puzzling and heartbreaking."

HAUNTING MESSAGE

Even during tough times, tWitch seemed optimistic and grateful to be alive. "One of my favorite parts of flying on a cloudy day is when the plane breaks through the clouds to reveal the beautiful day that's just beyond the cloud ceiling," he tweeted exactly two months before taking his own life. "A great reminder that just beyond [the clouds, there] are clear skies full of potential possibilities and promises."

Right now, those clouds are dark and heavy with grief. "We're completely devastated right now," grandfather Eddy says. "He was a beautiful person who contributed so much to this world and to everyone he met in a positive way. We miss him dearly, and we're hurting tremendously." As Allison faces life as a widow and a single mother, she's vowed "there won't be a day that goes by that we won't honor his memory. Stephen, we love you, we miss you, and I will always save the last dance for you." ■

"I'm at a loss for words right now, praying for his family and loved ones."
- Viola Davis

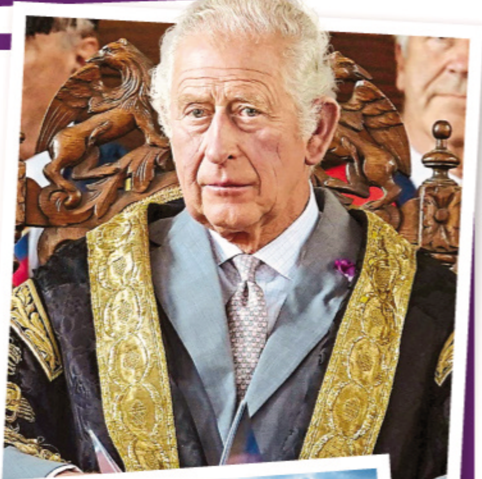
Harry & Meghan

THE BOMBSHEL

PALACE LEAKS

Harry shared his initial plan to move his family to South Africa with his father, King Charles, 74, the queen and Prince William, 40. "It was very much an internal document. Then it was leaked," he says, describing a decades-long relationship between the palace and the media. He alleges that separate publicity offices representing each of the different senior royals "trade" stories – offering reporters dirt about other members of the family in exchange for killing negative press. "It's a dirty game. You know, there's leaking, but there's also planting of stories," claims Harry, 38, adding that he and William vowed not to allow their publicists to continue the nasty tradition. "I would far rather get destroyed in the press than play along with this game or this business of trading," he says. "And to see my brother's office copy the very same thing that we promised the two of us would never ever do, that was heartbreaking." But Harry doesn't share any details, and when making such a shocking accusation against William, notes a source, "it's unfair not to provide proof."



BROTHERS AT WAR!

WILLIAM SCREAMED AT HARRY

After being told his requested meeting with the queen about pulling back from royal duties had been abruptly and suspiciously canceled, Harry had a showdown at Sandringham with his brother, father and grandmother – but Meghan was banned. "It was terrifying to have my brother scream and shout at me, and my father say things that just simply weren't true, and my grandmother, you know, quietly sit there, and sort of take it all in," the Duke of Sussex reveals, adding that he was most devastated that William had turned against him. "The saddest part of it was this wedge created between myself and my brother, so that he's now on the institution's side. Part of that, I get. It's ingrained in him that part of his responsibility is the survivability and the continuation of this institution." But by the same token, Harry's documentary "is a betrayal of William," says a source. "He refuses to tune in and is disgusted with Harry for vomiting all over the queen's legacy."

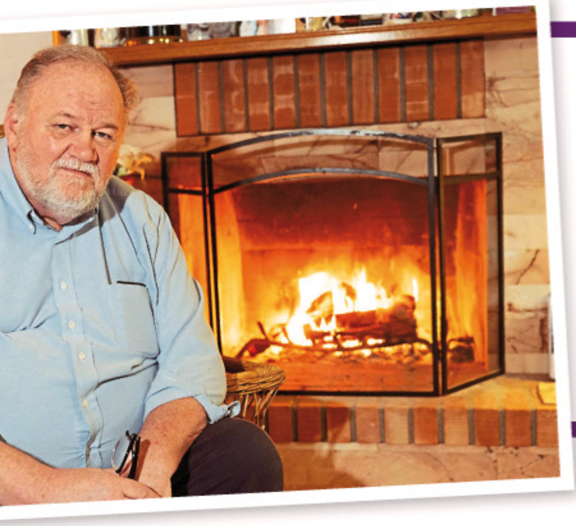
LS KEEP COMING!

In the second part of their Netflix series, the Duke and Duchess of Sussex expose the debilitating stress, lies and betrayal that drove them from royal life

TELLING ALL

HARRY'S BIG REGRET

The constant pressure took such a toll on Meghan, she revealed she was having suicidal thoughts and "barely holding on" at a London event in 2018. "I was devastated. I knew that she was struggling. The fact that it got to that stage, I felt… angry and ashamed," admits Harry, whose family, he claims, wouldn't allow her to get professional help. "I didn't deal with it particularly well. I dealt with it as institutional Harry, as opposed to husband Harry. I hate myself for it. What she needed from me was so much more than I was able to give."



HER LETTER WAS INTERCEPTED

When her father, Thomas Markle, began criticizing the royals, Meghan sought advice from the queen, who suggested she write a letter. "I had gone to great lengths to get that letter to my dad discreetly," she says, but "then I get the picture of the signature confirmation that it's been delivered, and it's not his signature. That's not my dad's handwriting." When it was published by the Daily Mail, Harry and Meghan insisted on filing a copyright infringement lawsuit, despite the palace's resistance. The newspaper "knew the family would encourage us not to sue," says Harry, adding that Meghan, 41, suffered a miscarriage over the stress of the court battle, which the pair won in early 2022.

Stars WITHOUT MAKEUP

Fresh-faced or frightening?! Hollywood dares to go bare

PADMA LAKSHMI, 52

The Top Chef host, who created a makeup capsule collection for MAC in 2019, might want to scare up some of her own products.

JENNIFER LOPEZ, 53

"I don't have any special filters on here, this is my face," says the singer, who uses – what else? – her own JLo Beauty products to keep her skin soft and supple.

NAOMI WATTS, 54

From glamorous movie star to...virtually unrecognizable!

KRIS JENNER, 67

The brave momager recently took fans through her skincare routine. Of course, it came with a plug: She uses daughter Kim's SKKN line.

DEMI MOORE, 60

Without any makeup, the actress looks as young as her daughters! Her secret? Moisturizing and a good facial.

MILLA JOVOVICH, 46

The actress, who brilliantly transformed into Resident Evil: The Final Chapter's Old Alice, looks like a teenager sans makeup.

PULP FICTION

AU NATUREL!

ZOË KRAVITZ, 34

The actress isn't afraid to go makeup-free, but when she does apply it, she takes it seriously. "Makeup is an art form," she says.

YASMINE BLEETH, 54

In November, the Baywatch babe reappeared looking like a hot mess.

CYNTHIA NIXON, 56

And Just Like That... Cynthia left home without makeup. What would Carrie, Charlotte and Samantha say?!

GWYNETH PALTROW, 50

While no makeup often makes stars look more youthful, Gwyneth actually looks older. Surely Goop can recommend some great beauty products to remedy this situation.

THE REAL TERESA!

TERESA GIUDICE, 50

The Real Housewives of New Jersey star, who usually cakes on her makeup, used the less-is-more approach in this Instagram video. "You look younger and better without makeup!" commented one fan.

KATIE HOLMES, 44

No makeup – not to mention an unruly mane and the harsh afternoon sunlight – makes this rough look far from red-carpet ready.

BILLIE EILISH, 21

Without face paint, the "Lost Cause" singer isn't nearly as edgy.

CAMERON DIAZ, 50

The Slackers star retired from acting – and apparently gave up the beauty salon as well!

inTouch with... MACI BOOKOUT

Reality TV Has Taught Me... Just Be Yourself!

The Teen Mom fan favorite has learned a lot from her decade-plus in the spotlight

HAPPY FAMILY
"We're just enjoying it," Maci says of life at home with Taylor and their three kids.

Maci Bookout has been on TV for 13 years, starting with her appearance on MTV's 16 and Pregnant in 2009, which led to her long-running stint on Teen Mom. And she has surprisingly few cringeworthy moments under her belt. "There were some hairstyles and some things that were hard to watch, but I don't have any regrets," she says. "You truly can't go wrong just being yourself." Here, the 31-year-old mom of three — she shares Bentley, 14, with ex Ryan Edwards and Jayde, 7, and Maverick, 6, with her husband of six years, former motocross racer Taylor McKinney — talks to In Touch's Fortune Benatar about keeping it real, where things stand with ex Ryan, and the celebrity who made her most starstruck.

What's the biggest lesson you've taken from your time on Teen Mom?

MB: There's nothing better than being genuinely you. There have been times where I've cringed at what I said or did, but ultimately I just try to enjoy it or learn from it.

Tell us about filming Teen Mom: The Next Chapter.

MB: The biggest difference is going from four or five cast members to a whole bunch — our group chat has grown significantly. It's more fun, and you get to see more of our friendships.

Who are you closest to?

MB: Still the OGs like Chey [Cheyenne Floyd], Amber [Portwood], Catelynn [Baltierra]. I've gotten a lot closer to Jade [Cline] and Bri [Briana DeJesus].

If you could see anyone return to the franchise, who would it be?

MB: Probably, Kail [Kailyn Lowry]. I appreciate her realness. We have a lot to gain from her story.

How much longer will you do the show?

MB: It's a season-to-season decision. If I can find a purpose in it that also affects the people who watch it, then I'll do it. The message I want to get out there this season is that conversations with your children are extremely important and that we're all doing the best we can.

You've been open about Bentley going to therapy. How comfortable is he sharing things on camera?

MB: It's always on Bentley's terms, on his time, and on whatever level he wants to take it. If it didn't work that way, then I'd find it very difficult to be on the show.

Bentley's dad, Ryan, was fired from the show in 2021. How are things with you?

MB: We have zero relationship and haven't for four years.

How do you and Taylor navigate having your relationship in the public eye?

MB: We've never been ones to read much of what's on social media. But beyond that, we've always understood that we're on the same team. Sometimes it's like, "I don't want you on my team because I don't really like you today; you're getting on my nerves." But it's a matter of maintaining the teamwork.

Are you still considering adoption?

MB: Yeah. We're still having conversations about that.

What's the latest on the kids?

MB: We're super busy. Jayde is playing softball and flag football. Maverick is playing flag football, and Bentley made the high school golf team. Then they'll all do wrestling in the winter. Every day is a roller-coaster ride! ■
